Judges Wallace and Allen Deny Right of Japanese to Hold Through Native Born Son

VISALLA, Nov. 24.—The practice of Japanese in California who obtain land in the name of their children and cultivate and live on that land is a flagrant violation of the anti-alien law, according to a decision handed down here today in the superior court by Judges Wallace and Allen, sitting en banc.

The decision was the outcome of a petition by J. Kawahara, a Japanese, to be appointed guardian of his 4-year-old son. Two years ago Kawahara bought land in his son's name, the decision said, for the use and benefit of the children. Desiring to place a mortgage on the land, it became necessary that the child have a guardian appointed. Kawahara's application for guardianship was denied.

RAISIN GROWERS BACK COMPANY

Packers' Evidence Said to Show Farmers Enthusiastic

(Special to The Republican.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—In attempting to prove that the raisin growers of Fresno county were not signing contracts with the California Raisin Company at the time of its organization, John W. Preston, counsel for the independent packers, succeeded in proving to the satisfaction of the federal trade commission the enthusiasm of the growers, the packers and every one connected with the industry for the organization of the company now under fire.

Mr. Preston told into the record a number of advertisements and documents which he thought showed only enthusiasm over the creation of the company.

When the principal witness for the day, G. H. McCandless, eastern sales manager for the American Seedless Raisin Company, became confused, the federal trade commission, which is now conducting an investigation of the company, President Franklin P. Nutting volunteered to straighten him out but the commission said they would listen and apparently he will have ample opportunity to explain how the company contracts were explained.

In his testimony Mr. McCandless said that the work of years and the expenditure of millions of dollars in building the company had been destroyed when the California Raisin Company was formed.

Asked to explain profits, McCandless was unable to explain how, over the signature of President Nutting, his company had promised the sale of $400,000 of bonds had promised this year a net profit of $150,000 when under the contract which had expired the average net annual profit had been but $100,000 on a capital of $1,000,000.

During the hearing when E. L. Chaddock was being cross examined he caused a great laugh in which even the members of the commission joined. He had stated that but for a short crop in the second year of its existence the California Raisin Company would have failed. Asked if he did not think that was providential, he replied that he always thought the Lord was on the side of the California Raisin Company.

It became evident today that the hearing will occupy the whole week, no hearing being held on Thanksgiving Day. President Giffen and other witnesses for the California Raisin Company will not go on the stand until Friday or Saturday probably.

May Oust Many

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 24.—The decision by the Tulare superior court on a ruling against use of land by an alien who holds it in the name of a minor, establishes an important precedent and it sustained will be the means of ousting many aliens from land holdings in California according to state Senator J. M. Inman.

Senator Inman was the author of the regulation adopted at a special executive session November 1 asking Governor Stephens to call another session for Japanese legislation. The practice of holding land through guardianship of children is general among aliens forbidden by law to hold title in their own name, Inman said, and had been sanctioned by court decision in a southern California case.

QUINLAN ADMITS BANK HOLD-UP

Exonerates His Partner and Tells Where He Bought Revolver

Half shaved and dressed in the garb of a working man, silent and wary and sobered from a night of rest in the jail, G. J. Quinlan, accused of the attempt to hold up the Grocers' National Bank, was arraigned yesterday in the police court before Judge Briggs and held in $5,000 for a preliminary hearing, the date of which has not been set.

Yesterday afternoon Quinlan was taken with his co-partner, Jim Pringle, to the office of Chief of Police Truitt, and the two men were examined by Deputy District Attorney E. J. Kettling.

Quinlan made a complete confession of his unsuccessful attempt to rob the bank, and exonerated Pringle, who was with him when he presented the check at the Grocers' Bank.

He took the blame upon himself, and said that he had been drinking heavily on Monday. He told where he had bought the automatic revolver, and said that when he registered in the store where he bought the gun, he had signed the name of J. H. Truitt, the same name that he had signed to the check for $500.

Besides having a police record, the police have found that Quinlan was sentenced from Tulare county to a year in San Quentin for burglary in 1908, which sentence he served.

Pringle is held as a material witness against Quinlan.

Dorm Club Enjoys Home Cooked Meal

The Dorm Club weekly supper was held last night in the Y. M. C. A. After the meal there was a talk on Thanksgiving day by George S. Stonebraker, which was followed by general discussion of the significance of the day, and how it should be celebrated. Some of the members contended that the day should be observed with worship and rest, while others stated that it should be a day for sports and general good times.

The subject of holding a Dorm Club Thanksgiving dinner was brought up, and it was decided that owing to the fact that many of the members would be out of town, and many others had already been invited elsewhere, that a club dinner would not be advisable.

The supper last night was prepared by Mrs. J. W. Hall and Mrs. Phyllis Long, who are winning the favor of the Y. men in rapid strides through their tasty preparation of good home-cooked foods.

Duncan Dancers at Musical Club Tuesday Night at White

Next Tuesday night, the Fresno Musical Club will offer as an attraction to its membership at the White theater a very wonderful evening of music and interpretation. George Copeland, pianist, will provide the incentive, and the interpreters are not less than the Isadora Duncan dancers, who have achieved world fame.

The Duncan Dancers hold within their genius the greatest art of this age. Indeed, no greater art ever existed in any age, and none is more needed by our old earth, where feet and lives drag weary weight.

Isadora Duncan discovered those laws of the Greeks, made visible to us through their plastic arts of sculpture and architecture. How much greater should our harvest be, could we but build on these living laws of supreme harmony, the beauty of the art which these young girls unfold, if understood, and put to use by our people. It would well us in body and spirit. It is the law from the center of our universe toward the circumference.

It has been written that if our lives

GET TOGETHER!

The one thing which must not happen is to put off this peace treaty business for the purpose of thrusting it into the next election. It is not merely that we shall have omitted the tide in the affairs of men which leads on to peace and unity. That is the greater consideration, but not the nearer one. The immediate one is that it will produce political chaos at home.

It will in the first place divert attention from pressing domestic issues. We have quite enough business of our own, without wasting time quarreling over the terms on which we will do our inevitable share of the world's business. The simple thing, for that part, is to accept the terms on which the rest of the world has already agreed. But even more important to the politician is the fact that this issue will disrupt parties and overshadow candidates. It is not an issue permanent enough to be the basis of new parties, and it ought not to be the means of destroying the old. The Democrats do not wish to make it their issue, and the Republicans, if they value the perpetuation of their party, should not risk making it theirs. Doubtless Democrats are individually divided on this issue, as Republicans are, but the great Democratic nucleus of the Solid South will not divide its votes, whatever may be the division of its opinions. Republicans, on the other hand, will divide, and if the great middle-class, native American vote, which is overwhelmingly for the League, and which has been the backbone of the Republican party, should desert it even temporarily on this issue, nothing else could take its place. Such of the foreign vote of the great cities as could be won from the Democratic party might neutralize it numerically, but the party would cease to be Republican, even in personnel. And, as candidates, the issue would be everything and the personality nothing. Which, since most crises arise after election, and the choice of personality is the only way of determining how they will be met, would be a calamity.

There are eighty senators who have voted for ratifying the treaty somehow. Sixty-four of these are enough. Some of these wish reservations which England, France, Italy or Japan would not accept. Some of them wish to require this acceptance. To do both of these is to assume the rejection of the treaty, if not in Washington, then in London or Paris. Therefore, some of them must yield, either by not insisting on things which the other powers would reject, or by not requiring their acceptance. At least sixty-four out of the eighty ought to see this point. Anything they can agree on, which would be a passing and not a rejecting of the treaty, will do. It may not be very good—neither is the treaty itself what we should like—but it will be what we can get. And the thing is to start, somehow, anyhow. This thing has got to be done over later, anyway, in the light of experience and of increased mutual confidence.

RIGHT TO WORK

The right to work may not be sacred, but it is at least usually as nearly sacred as the right to life, and at times may be, for the community, even more sacred than the right to individual life. Sometimes, for the betterment of society, we have to emphasize the sacred character of toil; at others, it is well or even necessary to emphasize the duty of society to reward toil more equitably. Whichever extreme prevails for a time, usually calls for a swing to the other direction.

So it is wholesome to find now, when we have had the bolshevist spirit of destruction so prevalent, so frequently found even in the sanctuaries of duty and of conformity to established principles, a group of men who, on their own volition, insist on the right to work. Wherever we hear now of industrial consciousness, it is invariably a demand that work be lessened or that it be given a different or a more abundant reward. But in Germany it is reported, 400 employees of a dye factory insisted that they should work on a state holiday, even though the management prepared to lay the men off. The superintendent was held in his office by force until he arranged for a continuance of operations.

Just now we have had rather too much of insistence on the reward for work. We need a little more insistence that there be work. Both impulses are necessary. Work without reward is as useless to society, and almost as pernicious, as reward without effort. But just now we need to insist on effort, or the world will go hungry.

UNION CONTRACTS USEFUL

The end of the job printers' strike in New York illustrates the value of even a non-enforceable contract with a responsible union. Many theorists on the union question have argued that since the money side of a contract can be enforced in an employer, by suit for damages, while the labor side can not be enforced in court on a union, the contracts were therefore one-sided and worthless. To some extent this is so, and we think the union ought ultimately to be made, as the Labor party government in Australia has made them, incorporated and financially responsible bodies. But meantime, even the legally unenforceable contracts are very well worth while.

In the printing business, for instance, the International Typographical Union stands absolutely behind the contracts made by its local bodies. Occasionally it happens that a radical or irresponsible group, gets possession of a local union, and insists on striking in violation of a contract. Occasionally it happens that the international union can not or does not bring these insurgent members instantly to terms. To that extent the contract fails. But it is not a failure, even then. In every such case, the employers have won the strike, usually very quickly, with the assistance of the international union itself. Newspaper strikes in violation of contract are very rare, and never last more than a few days. This job and book printers' strike has been much longer, being in a more enduring branch of the business.

But it, too, was finally won, and meantime the employers had the unconditional support of every other branch of organized labor. Such of them as could get printers went ahead, and their strike-breaking printers, all union men, were not "scabs" or "rats." Pressmen, photoengravers, binders, mailers and others worked without objection on such plates as they could get, whether engraved or set up in outside shops. The whole sympathy of organized labor, as well as of the general public, was with the employers. And while the strike, even so, lasted an unprecedented time, and tied up the chief magazine and book publishing businesses of the United States, it was a foredoomed failure from the beginning, and has now collapsed.

A contract only as enforceable as that is not perfect, from the employer's standpoint, since his end of the contract is much more summarily enforceable on him. But it is a vast lot better than unorganized, uncontractual relations—so much better that it is well worth entering into, on both sides.

AIMED AT PRESTIGE

The need for a strong and yet temperate and well considered diplomacy is no better illustrated now than in the possibilities of our financial relations with Europe. The people of the United States do not desire to be put in the light of arrogant money lenders to the nations of the Entente Allies. And yet there has been no reasonable proposal made that we should not receive payment for the money that has been advanced to Great Britain, France and other nations during the last three years. The total sum is huge and yet is not incommensurate with the relative perils of the various countries and the degree to which they were succored by the use of American goods and funds. We have shouldered our share of the financial burden. We can well expect that the other nations shall pay their share, even when the debt has been contracted to the United States. These European claims are in fact a large part of the security that lies behind our five issues of Liberty bonds, held in nearly every humble household in the United States.

A policy of either slackness or of arrogance is likely to put the United States in a false light toward Europe with regard to these claims. After entering the war, both to assert our own rights at sea and to uphold certain international principles of justice essential to our national existence, we have so far refused in good faith to pursue a common course of conduct for settling up the peace problems. A continued refusal is now, in the capitals of Europe considered likely. German leaders are casting about now for some opening to break the contract that they made at Versailles. Should they succeed in any degree, the resentment of the governments of London, Paris, Brussels and Rome will all very properly be directed against us. We must meet the situation, and meet it so that we can reasonably associate with our international associates on some other basis than constant and mutual suspicion.

The prospect is not a happy one. The difficulties are made the greater by the actual need that faces Europe with the coming of winter. Ordinarily, international solvency is a nation's most precious asset. But where a group of nations like these in Europe find their principal creditor one nation, has assumed an adverse political policy, it will be easy for them to cloak bankruptcy steps under an assumption of political readjustment. The present demand from Europe that interest payments be deferred may be ominous of greater and more persistent pressure for an abandonment of American prestige in all European matters.

A NIGHT PLAYGROUND

Several public officials of Santa Monica, among them the city librarian, the commissioner of public works and the superintendent of the police, are seeking to establish an evening playground, municipally operated. The high school grounds are to be equipped and lighted so that all the games and activities of a daylight playground may go forward freely and safely after nightfall.

The librarian is urging this innovation because she has found the kids who come to the reading room in the evening too full of a desire for fun and recreation to be readily interested in books.

But although this night-time playground means relief from outbursts of youngsters in the evening, it is also going to mean fun for the elders. There will be games and sports for old as well as young. And there will always be the fun of looking on while others play.

Night-lighted tennis courts have been common for years. The night-lighted playground should prove even more generally useful and satisfactory. It will work in beautifully, too, with community center activities which may be carried on within the community house in the winter and outdoors on the lighted playground in the summer.—Berkeley Gazette.

TAUGHT HOW TO STEP LIVELY

John Philip Sousa, says his whiskers, is at the Denison. When the composer of American march tunes last visited the Rose City he had his popular and well-known band, but since then he has fallen into the hands of a Williams, who has decorated on his upper lip. Mr. Sousa discovered how to make the public step lively before the traffic officers or the street car conductors did.—Portland Oregonian.

Cover Crops Necessary To Keep Soil in Proper Shape

Constant Cropping of Gardens or Fields Exhausts Humus Supply, and Decreased Yields Result—Legumes Are Recommended

To the pulverized rock, which growth of leaf and stem which must come before fruit or seed can be produced, added partially decomposed vegetable matter to make not only the gardens of the city, but the fields of the country, continuously productive, says the Portland Oregonian.

It is mainly this decaying vegetable matter upon which all plant life exists. No one would expect to raise a crop of any kind, in pure sand, and no more will one grow in pure clay, or in a combination of sand and clay, called loam, from which all decaying vegetable matter or "humus" has been extracted.

Yet farmers and gardeners who know this do not seem to realize that constant cropping of their land, year after year, without any addition of humus to the soil cannot fail to render it unproductive.

This humus is added to the soil by nature—when the land is allowed to rest or "fallow" by means of grass, weeds, leaves, etc., and this is the reason the earth's surface is yet productive, after these thousands of years' usage. When men crop the soil, fertility is usually maintained by the addition of stable manure—vegetation worked over and decomposed in the inner laboratories of nature, and even the farmer who has manure as a by-product of his live stock, never has as much of it as he would like to use. It is hardly possible to apply too much fertilizer to any soil.

A third source of enrichment of the soil is commonly overlooked, and, indeed, it is only in quite recent times that it has been known and utilized. This is what is sometimes called "green manure" or a "cover crop," and it is just as useful here as the Williams' talcum powder on his upper lip.

William's talcum powder on his upper lip, Mr. Sousa discovered how to make the public step lively before the traffic officers or the street car conductors did.—Portland Oregonian.

INACCURATE INFORMATION

Editor Republican: In your yesterday's issue, the correspondence of the Associated Press published a long interview with the acting President of Armenia, Mr. Khadikian, attributing to him a number of unimportant and diplomatic assertions, such as "We will follow out whatever is decided for us," "If America consents to rule us," etc.

We can not imagine that a diplomat like Mr. Khadikian used the curious declarations referred to him in that report.

In the first place the newly created word "immediate" has never included in its interpretation the idea of ruling since its birth, but that of teaching, helping, and the like.

But we have especially taken notice that there are just now five official representatives of the Armenian republic in this country, one of whom was the predecessor of Mr. Khadikian, all of whom have been here about a month having many interviews with senate committees and senators in Washington, and during all this time nothing near to the assertions contained in the report referred to above has been made. If there had been such a thing, we would have heard of it.

Moreover lately reporters attributed to Dr. James L. Barton words connected with Armenia, when he was obliged to refuse publicity.

With these considerations in view, we can easily and reasonably infer that none of the careless assertions in the interview mentioned above are not in fact to be attributed to Mr. Khadikian.

Twa Mouthfu's o' Naething

Weel sir, folk,
When I read bit tales
And hear folk talkin'
About in-dure games
For the winter season
I canna help thinkin'
That they entirely overluik
The finest o' them a'.
This here basket ball
Is a' richt in its way
And a game o' hand ball
Isnae ta' be despised
And I've heerd
Monny braw words o' praise
For this here bowlin'
And Kelly pool
Hes its devotees,
Whatever they are,
And I'm no' averse mesel'
Tae a game o' checkers,
But the best in-dure game
O' a' in-dure games
Is fir tae gae oop
Ontae I street
And walk oop the steps
Intae the pooblic library
And find a place
For tae hang yir hat
And then shlp back
Among the buke shelves
And get bney.
The point o' the game
Is fir tae find a buke
Or a couple o' bukes
For tae take hame wi ye
And the rules provide
That ye maun stie in
Onnywhere ye like
And soort o' squint
At the rows o' bukes
As ye move slowly along
And oddwhiles
Ye maun pu' one oot
That ye soort o' think
Wuld suit ye
And lean against a shielf
While ye read a shoot bit
And then put it back
And hunt an hour
About three hours
Is the proper time

Fir tae play the game oot
And in that time
Ye suld have moved
Past ilka shelf
And be waitin'
At the front desk
For license tae leave.
And ye suld hae
A pleasant jumble
In the head o' ye
O' bits o' travel
Aroun' the strange places
On the earth's surface
And a kind o' a feel
That ye'd been
Far oot and awa'.
Ye suld be smellin'
The tang o' seabreezes
And the brach' tonic
O' Jaug rides
Ower desert places.
And yir thochts
Suld arrange themsel's

Juist sae they'll jibe
Wi the dips ye've taken
Intae the innermaist hert
O' a Shakespeare
Or a Kipling
Or a Gene Field.
Aften and aften and aften
Ye'll run intae auld frien'
And open them oot
And renew acquaintance
And oddwhiles
Ye'll discover
A braw new delish
That warms yir hert
And fetches chuckles
Tae the tips o' ye.
Whit folk hae dunc
And whit folk hae thoct
And whit folk hae hoped fir

And wabody wha plays it

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

IT CAN'T BE DONE TODAY

In good King Arthur's merrie day
When nobles everywhere
Had iron boots and iron suits
For street and evening wear
A knight did not select his clothes
For style or fit or show,
(He had 'em cast, and they would last
Two hundred years or more.

Untroubled by a tailor's duns
Sir Lancelot would sport
The suit his dad before him had
To jousts, and church and court.
"That had the cost of living beal,"
We hear you cry, "If they Could dress like that in Astoria
Why cannot we today?"

We could, 'tis true; but just suppose
When tricked out like a knight
Beneath one's belt, behind, one felt
A fresh mosquito bite!
Imagine how we'd twist and writhe
In wild and tortured throes.
It's quite a knack to scratch one's back
When dressed in iron clothes!

And so, although it costs us more
To dress than we have got,
We can't be clad like Galahad
In merrie Camelot.
When knights went forth in iron coats
To gain a glorious name
Or fame to win, it must have been Before mosquitos came!

TAKE SURVEY ON LIGHT SAVING

Sixteen States To Give Public Sentiment on Question

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Surveys by Chamber of Commerce and Industrial organizations are in progress in sixteen states to ascertain public sentiment regarding a revision of the light saving act. The surveys will be extended throughout the country before next April, according to Marcus M. Marks, president of the National Daylight Saving Association.

The states where the movement is under way for permanent exchange of an hour of night for an hour of light are Massachusetts, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Colorado, Utah, Connecticut, Minnesota and Kentucky.

Proponents of the idea in Massachusetts, 2,800 manufacturers belonging to the Associated Industries of that state who are making the survey there according to Mr. Marks, reported that a bill would be introduced in the next legislative session in January and that it would be supported by a majority in both the Senate and House.

New York state for two years has had a daylight saving law in its statute books and Mr. Marks said any effort to amend it would be without the help of legislators from New York and Buffalo most of whom, he said, had been found in favor of the law. At present the month for daylight saving in New York conforms to the old Federal statute, from March to October. To have the law uniform, Mr. Marks said, an amendment will be introduced changing the time from last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September. The New York board of aldermen's recent action in passing a daylight saving ordinance, it was said, had brought other cities to take similar action.

"Fifteen of the eighteen mayors of Connecticut," continued Mr. Marks, "recently voted unanimously at a conference in New Haven to initiate daylight saving. It was previously decided that the bill by adopting an ordinance which will be effective the last Sunday of April next year. Philadelphia N. J., has taken similar action. In Baltimore, Md., a referendum vote showed that five out of six were in favor of it. Cincinnati has adopted it, so has St. Joseph, Mo., and we are getting encouraging reports from Chicago, Jersey City, Trenton, Trenton and Camden, N. J., Wilmington, Del., Philadelphia, Scranton and Pittsburg, Pa., Richmond Va., Chattanooga and Memphis, Tenn., Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Denver, Salt Lake City, Milwaukee, Louisville and Lexington, Ky."

"It was the intention of the National Daylight Saving Association following a plan of the Federal government," Mr. Marks said, "to make the entire country in our movement."

TO REORGANIZE BRAZILIAN LINE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 25.—The organization of the Lloyd Brasileiro, the Brazilian government's steamship enterprise, is forecasted in a message sent by President Pessoa to congress late in September.

The organization has a fleet of 75 ships with a total dead weight tonnage of 244,000. It has failed to pay its own way, even under war conditions particularly favorable to shipping. The president declares, and if the efforts of the government to have private matters do not succeed he will appeal to congress to sanction its reorganization. The plan the president will propose in that case will be to form a mixed organization in which both private interests and the state will have a share, the right of the latter to intervene being no greater than that of other shareholders.

The Lloyd Brasileiro has been under government control since August 12, 1913. Before the war the company owned 50 ships with a total dead weight tonnage of 85,000. When Brazil declared war on Germany 40 German ships of 257,821 tons in various Brazilian ports were taken over and added to the Lloyd Brasileiro's fleet. Later, 28 of these former German ships with a dead weight tonnage of 125,520 were leased to France.

BRITISH SHIPPING WOOL TO AMERICA

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The British owners of woolen goods are selling wool to American manufacturers, although the clothing makers here say that high prices are due to scarcity of wool. The industry agreed to ship to Boston during October 4000 bales of Australian and 10,000 bales of New Zealand wool. The only reason given for the industry of wool for this action is that the American woolen manufacturers need this supply. The Evening News asks: Isn't this wool needed at home?

SOLVES MYSTERY OF LAVA FLOW

Investigates During an Eruption of Mauna Loa Volcano

HILLO, Island of Hawaii, T. H. Nov. 24.—The mystery of a lava flow, the mechanism of the flow, and its behavior in motion to a large extent have been solved by the recent great eruption of Mauna Loa, one of the volcanoes on this island, according to Professor W. A. Jagger, Jr., volcanologist.

Although there has been much opportunity to study the mechanism of the flow, in fact, it was not until the lava flow was seen from the summit of the volcano, that the mystery was solved. The lava flow, which began on October 17, 1914, and continued to flow until the present time, has been seen from the summit of the volcano, and the mechanism of the flow has been solved.

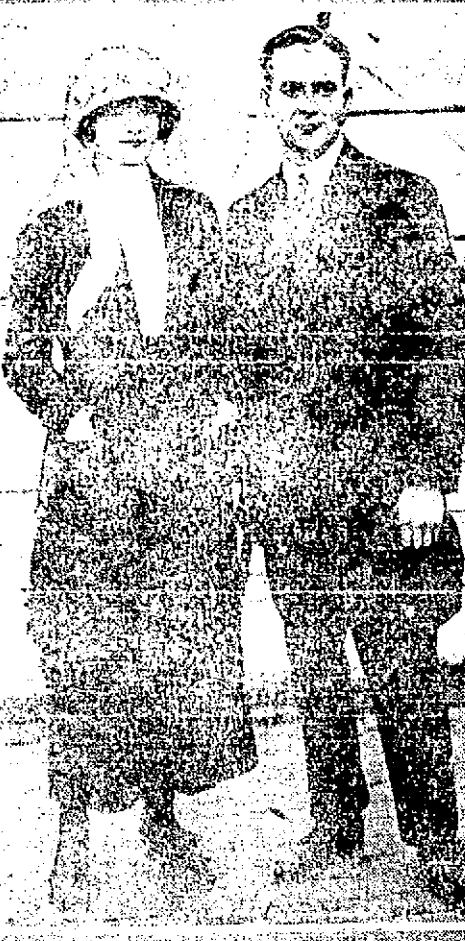

When the professor left the volcano only one foot of the original lava flow was left. This flow, which was seen from the summit of the volcano, was seen from the summit of the volcano, and the mechanism of the flow has been solved.

After watching the two flows Professor Jagger verified by measurements a conjecture which he first made while observing the eruptions of the Mauna Loa volcano. He noted that the lava flow was not a simple flow, but a complex flow, and the mechanism of the flow has been solved.

DECLARES POWER SITUATION GOOD

Expected Rains Will Relieve Demands on Storage

BERKELEY, Nov. 24.—The light and power situation in California this year offers nothing to worry about, declared H. H. Hays, power administrator of the state, at a conference during the course of a lecture delivered last night at the University of California. Hays said that the power situation in California is good, and that the expected rains will relieve the demands on storage.

Confidence has been expressed that the power situation in California will be good, and that the expected rains will relieve the demands on storage.

"California," he said, "is fortunate from the fact that it possesses oil fields and a plentiful supply of hydro-electric power, which is expressed only in the form of water in the state of California. This power should be developed to the highest point."

The need for this development has been recognized by congress, which has passed a bill which will encourage hydro-electric development. To take care of the normal power needs of California, which is a state of California, it is necessary to develop the power to the highest point.

In the western part of this state last year 12 per cent of the power used was developed hydro-electrically. In the four years preceding the lowest amount of hydro-electric power used was 10 per cent. These figures will indicate the effect of the rainfall in California on the hydro-electric field.

BERKELEY, Nov. 24.—Eight 20-mark gold pieces were found in a man's bar of English soap by two women who bought the soap from a peddler in Berlin. It is believed the money was lost by a German war prisoner, and that the soap was stolen from him after they had reached the German front.

LUDENDORFF'S OWN STORY

LUDENDORFF LONGED FOR PEACE, BUT KNEW GERMANY MUST FIGHT TO VICTORY OR BE DISHONORED

German and Austrian Chancellors Feared Effect of Russian Revolution; Austria's Demands for Peace, Voiced by Count Czernin, Embarrassing to German Faction Which Advocated Risking All on Victory; Austro-Polish Solution Criticized

GERMANY FEARED TO SHOW TO ENTENTE WEAKNESS SHE ACKNOWLEDGED TO HERSELF

A series of peace moves that puzzled the world outside were made by Germany and Austria in the spring and summer of 1917. Through the court at Vienna, through Stockholm and Holland, Germany tried to draw her enemies into negotiations. The idea was spread that the world and that much would find a way to get back into the good will of the world and that much would be considered if the opposing nations would only grant a conference. The world outside these efforts were merely part of a plot to entangle the allied powers in a conference, when they will to fight and then force upon them the terms of conquest. Germany's military chiefs had concluded, that Germany, instead of being united to face the world, was really sharply divided and that the powerful military faction, supporting Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg, was striving to find a way to save something for Germany by forcing the military to forego some of their ambitions. The military, however, were still too powerful and the effort did not succeed.

By GENERAL ERICH VON LUDENDORFF

In this war it was impossible to distinguish where the sphere of the army and navy began, and that of the people ended. Army and people were one. The world witnessed the war of nations in the most literal sense of the word. The great powers of the earth faced each other in united concentrated strength. And not only between the armed forces did the combat rage along those huge fronts and on distant oceans; the very soul and vital force of the enemy was attacked in order to curdle and paralyze them.

This world-wide war of nations made known to us Germany as a nation on whom its whole overwhelming burden fell. Every individual had to give his very utmost, if we were to win. We had literally to fight and work to the last drop of blood and sweat and with it all maintain our fighting spirit, and above all, our confidence in victory, a hard but imperative necessity, in spite of the death of food which the enemy inflicted on us, and the onslaught of his propaganda, which was of amazing force, if unopposed.

Our army and navy are rooted in the nation, as is the oak in German soil. They live upon this homeland, and from this homeland they draw their strength. They can keep but cannot produce, what they need; and can only fight with the moral, material and physical means which the country provides. These means make possible victory, failure and defeat, and the soldier's sacrifice in the daily contest with the miseries of war.

They alone could secure Germany's final success. With them our country waged the ultimate conflict for the world, even at the sacrifice of our allies and the exploitation of occupied territories as far as the laws of land warfare permitted.

The army and navy had thus to lead to the homeland for its constant renewal and rejuvenation in morale, numbers and equipment. It was essential to maintain the morale and war spirit of those at home at the highest pitch. We must see to it that they should. The longer the war lasted, the greater were the dangers and the difficulties, and the more imperative grew the demands of the army and navy for spiritual and material reinforcement.

The very last resources, both in men and material, had to be made available and devoted to the prosecution of the war. Hard work and an unflinching determination, helped by the Russian revolution, had enabled us to relieve the military situation in 1917. But meanwhile, as had already been the case in Austria-Hungary, the breaking up of the united will of the German people, under pressure of this splendor and of economic privations combined with the growing influence of enemy propaganda, was to bring about events which steadily lowered the fighting strength of both the allied states and jeopardized our military gains.

From this time onwards the hope of the entente for the inner collapse of their enemies was continually fed. Peace would be immeasurably most difficult, and the end of the war was postponed. Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Count Czernin were both completely obsessed by the influence of the Russian revolution. They both feared a similar catastrophe in their own countries, and thought of nothing but possibilities of peace, which had unfortunately receded into the distance, whereas until peace had been attained they should have taken energetic measures to prosecute the war.

They ought to have raised the morale of the nation by creative activity, just as G. H. Q. had succeeded in improving the army's fighting strength in a desperate struggle against a powerful adversary. As it was, their policy led to perpetual concessions at home, and they gave up the task of leading the nation. The whole tendency of their actions was to lead the nation into a state of helplessness, and they did not realize that they were prejudicing the conduct of the war.

Neither of these men, whom destiny had placed at the head of their people at this terrible crisis, possessed the strong character that events demanded.

No doubt they had to face serious internal difficulties. Count Czernin, with his conglomerate empire, had an infinitely complex task. The problems presented to Herr von Bethmann were probably easier, he had only to act in accordance with the conclusions that could be drawn with overwhelming force from the nature of the war and from our position in face of a foe determined to destroy us.

Instead of having ever more and more on the idea of a peace of reconciliation, which was always out of the question, he ought to have knitted the nation together, and pushed out to it the great task before it and the objects to be attained, and then have given us in the army a free hand. The German people ought to have been shown again and again what they were fighting for, and what the enemy in the heart of Austria really wanted. The military would then have followed him as they had done in 1914.

There are always some who can never be taught. Was there really any room for doubt regarding the ideas and objects of our enemies, as interpreted in the light of their whole history and their whole mentality, but to mention their danger to our peace offer of December 12th and to Wilson's note of December 18th? Could anyone fail to realize that the weakening of the war spirit at home must cripple the conduct of the war? Must we seriously consider the possibility, as suggested by G. H. Q., the decision for the submarine campaign and the retreat to the "Stiegfried" line, and shown drastically and clearly enough even to the my mind. It must have been obvious to the government that earnest and thoroughly conscientious effort alone could pull us through. Longed to Lay Down Burden.

The enormous responsibility I had to bear made me feel that the conclusion of hostilities, how could it have been otherwise? I often expressed myself in that sense. But unless we got a peace which secured the existence of our country, the war would be lost. I could not see how peace was possible unless the enemy also was ready for it. I thought it very dangerous for us to be alone in announcing a desire for peace.

I was fully aware that nations do not get peace merely by talking about it, or even heartily longing for it. The pacifist idea of a peace of understanding was for many a German the last straw. I was deeply sincerely believed in it, being moved by that spirit of exalted idealism which has not yet been realized in this world of strife. But did these idealists know whether the enemy would do as they did, and if he did not, was it not clear that by spreading the notion that we could obtain such a peace at any time, they were leading the way to irreparable disaster, because since human nature is what it is, they were inevitably weakening our war spirit, which should at all costs have been strengthened?

They made our people yearn for peace without making the enemy ready for it. In fact, they made peace more difficult of attainment, as the entente knew all about the state of feeling in our country, and used it for their own purposes. These idealists also impeded the efforts of general headquarters to make the enemy more inclined for peace by those means which alone lead to success in war. In spite of all their idealism they are responsible for the misfortune of our country.

Never Saw Chance for Peace. I know of no time when the attitude of the enemy justified our hope for a fair and just peace of understanding. Everything that has been said or written on this subject is in the light of the mark. The government never indicated to general headquarters a possible opening for such a peace.

No doubt we could at any moment have had such a peace as has now been forced upon us. What chance hand over Galicia to Poland and support the union of Poland and Germany. At this moment our meeting with the two statesmen, which had lasted about ten minutes, was interrupted. The Chancellor and Count Czernin were summoned to the two Emperors. This ended the official part of the Imperial meeting as far as I was concerned. In the afternoon I was received by the Emperor Charles.

After lunch Count Czernin explained his views to me in a private conversation. He based his wish for peace upon the internal condition of the Dual Monarchy. I had no reason to conceal my personal opinion. After all, I was the son of my fatherland and had a perfect right to express what I thought. I told Count Czernin that he ought to lead the people of the Dual Monarchy more firmly and raise their morale. He replied that this was impossible. His Polish project seemed to me very dubious. What would Poland's attitude toward us be? What effect would it have on our eastern provinces? I was all the more astonished at his whole scheme as Austria-Hungarian policy on Warsaw showed no signs of honest concern about German interests.

The Polish project was quite definite; the surrender of Alsace-Lorraine to France, however, presented a perfectly clear issue, of which, in my opinion, there could be no question as long as we were not beaten. Would Not Confess Weakness. Every nation stands or falls by its honor. All German people were united in regarding Alsace-Lorraine as German, and in considering it a point of honor for us to fight to the utmost in defense of this possession. Any authority, whether civil or military, which failed to recognize this would have been rightly swept away by public opinion.

Our situation was certainly serious, but we were still capable of putting up a stiff fight; we only needed the will to do so. The reader of Alsace-Lorraine would have been an open confession of weakness, and would have been condemned as such even by well-meaning people. At that time there was no room for such a sacrifice. I might confidently be expected that the Entente would see nothing in all these proposals but a trap or a confession of military defeat that would make them raise their demands considerably.

Count Czernin could give no definite answer to my inquiry as to whether the Entente would really be satisfied with the surrender of Alsace-Lorraine. He expressed fears of the gravest kind on Germany's internal conditions. He must have been in possession of excellent information.

This closed our interview. Count Czernin did not again mention the separation of Galicia from the Austro-Hungarian Empire, though he continued for some time to urge that Roumania should be included in Austria-Hungary's sphere of influence, and the East, including Poland, in that of Germany. These were broad and clear generalizations, which, if G. H. Q. could only agree, they were recorded in the Kreuznach Agreement of May 17 and 18.

Feared Break With Austria. Soon afterwards, however, Count Czernin supported the Austro-Polish solution with great energy and skill, and thus revealed the real character of his country. For Austria to renounce Poland would have produced disastrous effects in the nonchalance of the young Emperor was also at stake. It was obvious Count Czernin's intention to oust us in Poland as well as in Roumania. The Austro-Polish solution entailed grave dangers for Austria and Germany. The Field-Marshal and I feared that it meant the breaking up of the Alliance, and was a direct threat to our eastern provinces. The Poles would always pursue their claims to German territory, and the Prussian Poles would play into their hands. The Vienna Government would find itself forced to become the agent of their wishes.

As long as these views were advanced by an isolated Poland German could deal with them, but if a Slav Austria stood behind them, the whole thing assumed a different aspect. Germany's vital interests would be seriously threatened, conflict would arise between the two Empires, and would find Germany in an extraordinarily difficult position, both from the military and political point of view. The province of Silesia would have been endangered and our communications with East Prussia, Lithuania and Courland threatened. The annexation of these two districts was at that time by no means a fantastic dream. Neither did I see how from the economic point of view Germany could rescue herself to the Austro-Polish solution, which in Poland itself was bound to entail the gravest difficulties and to cut us off from the Russian market. We were from experience what an obstacle to the will to do so. The question was often to be discussed by us in the future, and the verdict passed upon it by the German Government to undergo strange transformations.

In the next installment Gen. Ludendorff reveals that the German Government and people were thoroughly upset by the Russian Revolution and lively fears of a revolt in Germany were held in high circles. Public unrest became so marked that Hindenburg and he appealed to the Emperor.

HOHENZOLLERN IS VISITED BY LUNATICS

AMER-INGEN, Holland, Nov. 25.—Amperingen officials whose task it is to guard the safety of the former German Emperor were surprised into action the other day by a German who said he was "Prince Friedrich of Hohenzollern" and a brother of the former Emperor.

The visitor registered at a hotel in Amperingen and was taken to the former Emperor at Drenth, claiming an interview on important family matters. The police were informed and investigation revealed that the man had in some way actually reached Holland from Germany the night before without any papers to identify him, and he was quickly sent back over the frontier.

When the exiled monarch first came to Amperingen the village was visited by many persons who were mentally unbalanced. Among them one man who said that he was the King of England, and tried to prove his Austro-Hungarian policy on Warsaw showed no signs of honest concern about German interests.

The Polish project was quite definite; the surrender of Alsace-Lorraine to France, however, presented a perfectly clear issue, of which, in my opinion, there could be no question as long as we were not beaten. For the last ten months breadstuffs exports were $7,351,988, as against $11,855,469 for the same period in 1918. The monthly report of the department of commerce issued today also showed October exports totaled 322,271 bales, valued at $5,732,867, as against 323,985 bales worth $6,627,504 for October, 1918. In the last ten months exports aggregated 4,552,583 bales at $77,418,702 compared with 4,124,528 bales at $53,402,622 for the corresponding period of 1918.

Meat and dairy products exported in October amounted to $9,194,215 against $6,947,615 a year ago. Wheat was the heaviest grain export for the month, totaling 12,686,073 bushels at $22,019,573, and the most valuable meat export with 16,402,312 pounds worth $13,259,591.

PACIFIC COAST READJUSTING TO PEACE INDUSTRIAL BASIS

Federal Reserve Bank, San Francisco

Readjustment to a peace basis has progressed rapidly in the Pacific Federal Reserve District in the year following the signing of the armistice. Lumbering, shipbuilding and mining are among the industries in this district which were most directly affected by the war stimulus.

All surplus areas of lumber cut on government orders have been absorbed. Mill stocks are 20 per cent below normal, and sales are 20 per cent in excess of those of a year ago. Volume of buying declined in September of this year, but there followed a strong demand for both domestic and foreign consumption, which, in spite of the fact that there is normally a seasonal decline, has steadily increased during October and the early part of November, with prospects of continuing increase in demand throughout the winter. Demand is so great as to practically prevent replenishment of depleted mill stocks, and a number of mills are now refusing to accept new orders. During the four weeks ending November 1, an average of 122 mills in the Pacific Northwest reported production of 22,577,340 feet—42 per cent below normal, as compared with 7.23 per cent below normal during the corresponding period of 1918, and 4.2 per cent below normal during the preceding four weeks. Orders accepted were 26.29 per cent, and shipments 15.65 per cent below actual production, as compared with 22.23 per cent and 21.45 per cent, respectively, during the preceding four weeks. An average of fourteen California reduced mills reported a cut of 38,640,000 feet, shipments of 22,810,000 feet, and orders received of 26,000,000 feet during the same period. In September, fifteen California white pine and sugar pine mills produced 1,215,333 feet, shipped 32,845,000 feet, and filled orders for 39,291,623 feet on September 20.

Increased building activity is responsible for a considerable portion of the increased demand for lumber. Building permits, instead of showing the usual seasonal decline, have steadily increased during the fall months, nineteen principal cities reporting permits aggregating $12,116,000 in October, 1919, as compared with $3,331,000 in October, 1918, and $11,023,000 in September, 1919. With few exceptions, the cities of the district report that building of homes and apartment houses is responsible for 40 to 50 per cent of the permits (by value). Slower progress in the transition from a war status has been made by the steel shipbuilding industry. Most of the wooden shipbuilding yards have now been closed, their materials sold, and labor employed absorbed by other industries. Since the first of October the steel shipbuilding situation has been complicated by strikes for increased wages in the face of cancellation of orders, decreased production, and no immediate prospect of new contracts. All of the yards in the San Francisco Bay region have been closed since the sailing of the strike October 1. It is now reported, however, that they will reopen shortly, provided a sufficient number of employees signify by November 1 their willingness to return to work. When operation is resumed it will be with greatly curtailed forces, some yards planning to run with half the number of employees previously employed. Yards in Los Angeles have resumed on a stop-work basis, with a material reduction in number of men and with an excess of applications for employment. The yards in the Pacific Northwest are materially reducing their forces. In Portland it is reported that the yards building wooden ships are employing 320 men, as compared with a maximum during the war of 16,700, and these building steel ships 4,000, as compared with a maximum of 21,000; the Seattle yards 22,000, compared with a maximum of 25,000. These new employees in Seattle will be laid off at the rate of 3,000 or more per month until March 1, when all but four of the ships under contract will have been completed.

In spite of the large number of men released from shipbuilding, practically all have been absorbed by other industries. Portland reports 2,600 unemployed, 700 of whom are ex-shipbuilders. Spokane 900, with the labor situation "undoubtedly more satisfactory than for many months." Salt Lake, practically no unemployed, with the exception of a few strikers, and Los Angeles, no unemployed, with a shortage of skilled laborers. Accurate figures for San Francisco are not obtainable because of the large number of strikers, many of whom are attempting to obtain temporary employment in other lines pending settlement of strikes. The only available statistic is that of the Journeymen Tailors. No agreement has been reached and the situation is as follows:

OCTOBER, 1919
State	Number of Failures	Assets	Liabilities
Arizona	2	$ 1,150	$ 1,150
California	83	236,277	236,277
Idaho	1	7,700	7,700
Nevada	1	150	150
Oregon	2	10,100	10,100
Utah	1	4,800	4,800
Washington	1	28,583	28,583
Total	91	$29,550	$29,550

An increase in exports of 565,000,000, offset by a decrease in imports of 105,000,000, resulted in a net increase of 460,000,000 in the balance of trade during the first nine months of 1919.

IMPORTS
District	1919	1918	1917
San Francisco	$176,251	$109,096	$109,096
Los Angeles	7,035	5,992	5,992
Oregon	1,415	2,402	2,402
Washington	184,826	237,943	237,943
Total	$369,527	$255,433	$255,433

Bank clearings in the twenty-four principal cities of the district aggregated $1,736,421,600 in October, 1919, an increase of 30.17 per cent over October, 1918, and 9.14 per cent increase over September, 1919. In the reserve cities increases over September were as follows: Salt Lake City, 14.5 per cent; San Francisco, 10.3 per cent; Los Angeles, 10.8 per cent; Spokane, 10.5 per cent; Oakland, 7.7 per cent; Portland, 5.9 per cent; Tacoma, 1.5 per cent. Decreases were as follows: Seattle, 2.3 per cent, and Orem, 0.3 per cent. Interest rates remain unchanged, varying from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent in industrial sections and averaging 5 per cent for loans in agricultural sections. Winter wheat is now being sown in the Pacific Northwest, estimates indicating that with a continuation of favorable weather conditions fall-sown acreage will materially exceed that of 1918. California citrus fruits are moving to market. The 1919-20 crop is estimated at 85 to 90 per cent of that of 1918-19, the crop of 1918-19 being 1,000,000 tons, valued at $15,000,000, which compares with the 1918 crop of 1,000,000 tons, valued at $11,500,000. Daily production of petroleum in California during October averaged 27,500 barrels, as compared with 27,000 barrels during September. Stored stocks decreased $32,000 barrels during the month, aggregating $2,000,000 barrels on October 25.

TOKYO, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press.)—A dispatch from Amoy, China, in official quarters, says that the anti-Japanese group at Amoy was ordered to disperse by the police authorities on October 10. Consequently obstacles to the handling of Japanese goods have practically been removed.

employing sailors now report that they have resumed on an "open shop" basis. The steel and coal strikes apparently have had no important effect upon labor conditions in this district, and there are at the moment few labor difficulties other than those in and around San Francisco and Seattle. In San Francisco a new strike has been called, and it is anticipated that adjustment of the shipyard strikes may be reached in the near future, although no strikes have been called since the war. Seattle is now with increased employment and activities of the industrial sector to normal levels.

The purpose of the company, in which Theodore, Archibald and Kenneth Roosevelt, Dr. Richard Dugby and Philip Roosevelt, are directors, is to take over an existing company for house on the edge of the white light district.

We saw a chance to make some money," said one of the directors, "that's the whole explanation."

ROOSEVELTS WILL RUN COFFEE HOUSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Partly as a business enterprise and not as a political venture, members of the Roosevelt family have associated themselves to conduct in New York City a "coffee house," a name reminiscent of the centers of political and literary discussion in earlier days in English history.

The purpose of the company, in which Theodore, Archibald and Kenneth Roosevelt, Dr. Richard Dugby and Philip Roosevelt, are directors, is to take over an existing company for house on the edge of the white light district.

RICHMOND, CALIF., Nov. 25.—Patricio John Castro, the second oldest native son in California, and the man who sold Mare Island to the United States government, died last night at his home in San Pablo, he was 72. He came from the old Castro family prominent in the early annals of San Francisco and Contra Costa county. The town of Martinez was named after his mother, Louise Martinez. ## ARMY UNITS TO BE PRESERVED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The war department has approved a plan to "cultivate in every possible way a healthy esprit de corps in every organization." In an official memorandum from General March, today calls attention of commanding officers to the importance of this element, and suggests ways in which it can be strengthened. Regimental flags must be designed so as to perpetuate the history of the unit, years in which it has participated being indicated by symbols. The same devices are to be used on regimental stationers, plus watch chains and even on the white mess jackets of its officers.

GENERAL STAMPEDE MADE FROM OMSK

Kolchak's Army, Badly Shattered, on Way Eastward

TRIUMPH, Tuesday, Nov. 19.—(The Associated Press.)—Eight thousand wives and children of officers, making an eight-hour flight from Omsk, are reported to have been captured by the Bolsheviks ten miles east of Omsk. The retreat of the 10,000 units of the Siberian army from the Al-Basun capital to a general stampede, the troops throwing away their guns and commanding locomotives, trains and cars in which to escape. Fifteen trains carrying officers and their families, besides scores of other trains filled with refugees, ammunition and merchandise, which were blocked by wreckage and lack of motor power, fell into the hands of the Bolsheviks, who followed up the escape by a cavalry pursuit.

Street fighting occurred in Omsk. Panic is reported to reign at Tatarskaya, 100 miles east of Omsk, which is overrun by fleeing soldiers. Polish troops who have been guarding the railway are leaving with the utmost haste.

Admiral Kolchak is reported to be approaching Novosibirsk. One year after assuming the supreme leadership, Admiral Kolchak is being driven on his way eastward, facing the possibility of re-creating his seat of government on the shore of Lake Baikal and reconstructing his army, which has been badly shattered.

"No! Leave It Open!"

It Isn't Necessary to Close the Kitchen Door Now That We Have a

"Wear-Ever"

Aluminum Griddle

A KITCHEN full of smoke and odor of grease is unknown to the woman who uses the "Wear-Ever" Griddle when making that distinctly American and most delicious breakfast dish—griddle cakes.

No grease necessary—and the cakes do not stick, but are browned beautifully and baked thoroughly—light, deliciously appetizing and wholesome.

Heat the griddle. (Some women place a bit of batter near the outer edge of the griddle. When the batter browns, griddle is hot enough to bake cakes.) Then turn down the flame about one-half. Save fuel!

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Poison gas was "one of the most humane weapons of the war," according to a report by Surgeon General Ireland, based on analysis of American casualties in France made public today. Gas caused 27.3 per cent of all casualties. It is found, accomplishing the grim object of all weapons of war which is to put men out of action, but there were only 1.87 per cent of deaths in gas cases, as compared with 23.4 per cent from shell or bullet wounds.

In other words, based on statistics, the report said, "a man would have 12 times as many chances of recovery as the man put out of action by other causes."

DEATH FOLLOWS AUTO TRY-OUTS

One Killed, Two Injured
on Ascot Speedway—
Practice

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—One man was killed and two seriously injured in automobile accidents at Ascot speedway here today during try-outs for the race to be held on Thanksgiving Day.

D. Arthur Kennedy, 33, was crushed and died almost immediately when he crashed into a wall while riding over the back of a truck. Walter Blume, mechanic, who was driving, suffered a broken leg and numerous bruises.

Page M. Philbrook, mechanic, 124 1/2 Sixth street, Sacramento, was injured and may die. He was riding with Edward Kaster in the Kaster special when it crashed into the guard rail and was wrecked.

The first accident occurred shortly after noon. Jack Jones had been driving the Swift, formerly owned by Earl Cooper, which he had numbered 12 in defiance of racing regulations. Noting a rear wheel out of line he turned the car over to Blume with instructions to drive a slow lap and locate the trouble. Kennedy, standing near, asked and received permission to ride.

Blume had opened up the car on the back track when it was spun to the right, and the whole team turned over twice. Both men were thrown out. Blume to one side and Kennedy in the path of the car, which struck him as it fell. The automobile was not seriously damaged and may appear in the race Thursday.

The second accident took place shortly after 4 o'clock. Kaster, driving, turned into a curve near the grand stand at high speed and apparently lost control. The machine, after hitting the rail, spun on its front wheels, with the rear end swinging in the air and collapsed, a mass of twisted steel. Philbrook was thrown 30 feet and struck head-first on the concrete. Kaster is in soft dirt near the guard rail.

Ed Kaster is well known to auto motor race enthusiasts, especially as a three-wheel driver. In a race at Hanford, September 29, he narrowly escaped death with his mechanic who was seriously injured yesterday.

In his former race, Kaster while well up in the race, broke a steering knuckle drive through the guard rail about 50 miles an hour, tore the tops off four automobiles, hit a fifth and smashed into a nearby house, backwards, totally wrecking it. Kaster was thrown to the ground and escaped unhurt, but Philbrook broke a leg and wrist.

Withdraw Proceedings on Valuation of Railroad
Property

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 25.—The Berkeley city council today adopted a resolution today declaring that "it appears to the council that the confidence of the public formerly enjoyed by the railroad commission is rapidly waning by reason of its charged position in dealing with municipalities and their public utilities."

The city attorney was instructed to withdraw all proceedings pending before the commission regarding the application of the San Francisco-Piedmont terminal railway for settlement franchise or a valuation of its property.

"The railroad commission," states the resolution, "has advised the city of Berkeley that it is inadvisable to the commission whether the city participate further in the valuation."

A valuation fixed by the commission would not be accepted, according to the resolution.

Frank V. Cornish, the Berkeley city attorney, and secretary of the attorney's department of the California league of municipalities, announced last week that the city attorneys of the state were not anxious to appear before the commission until that body "reformed" its dealings with public utilities.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—George Zecman, general manager of the Western Oil Company, yesterday announced that his concern is contemplating improvements and enlargements of its plant to be made in the near future at an approximate cost of $100,000.

"Materials needed for our purposes are secured now than ever before in the history of the country," said Zecman, "and it is almost impossible to secure construction workmen but it is imperative for us to increase our production facilities at the earliest possible time because our principal product, gasoline, is in such demand that we are finding it very difficult to keep up the supply."

"We are now running our refinery day and night, with double shifts of workmen on the job, but we are only able to keep even with our orders. We are supplying thirty-four retail filling stations at present and have nearly that number more on the waiting list. If we are to take advantage of such a wonderful opportunity we will have to build a larger plant."
